Light on the Attempt to Fix Star Route Jurors.

Danenhower Telling the Story of the Jeannette Cruise.

Iowa Congressmen in Danger from German Defections.

Jury Bribery

WASHINGTON, October 16.—When asked hether he had anything to say with reference to affidavits published this morning in connection with the star route jury bribery affair, Merrick said that in his opinion it was neath the dignity of government counsel to gage in newspaper discussion of the matter at this time. The whole subject was under vestigation and in two or three days he expected special counsel would make a report. Meanwhile any attempt to forestall public opinion would be unsuccessful. Without doubt attempts will be made, with more or less success, to foist upon the government the services of corrupt men with the object of damaging that case. It was a circumstance worthy of remark that every one of the jurors hom it is alleged were corruptly approached uted for the acquittal of some of defendants. Some time ago when Falls' disloyalty was rst discovered the district attorney was advised by letter of the circumstances by government counsel and his prosecution recommended. Since Falls' dismissal he wrote several letters to the attorney general, who refused in most emphatic language to have anything further to do with him and referred him o Merrick. He had not, however, availed himself of this advice. Merrick added that e already had three or four cases ready to ring before the Allentown grand jury, and ould also be ready to proceed with re-trial f star route jury cases just as soon as they ere reached on the court docket.

Governor H. H. Wells, special counsel for e government conducting investigation into ry bribing charges, was asked if he had ad affidavits published this morning. He nswered. "Yes. I read Colonel Ingersoll's ery ingenious argument and while it contains any inaccuracies and evident mistakes I on't think it proper for me to discuss the atter in the columns of newspapers. I may y however it is not true that I was employ- by Mr. Cameron. Indeed, I never saw at gentleman nor had communication of ny sort with him on any subject until after was employed to do a plain professional ty. It is another serious mistake to supose that I am investigating cases of lleged bribery in private interests. would not undertake an investigation of that sort, regarding it as nprofessional. I understood my duty to be repare cases against accused parties, and hen prepared I shall undoubtedly prosecute em in the appropriate legal tribunal, nor ill the prosecution be hindered by this ublication of Col. Ingersoll, or any like publication. The character of some persons aking affidavits is so notoriously bad that eir statements are not likely to obtain much redence anywhere. My opinion is, the public ill be satisfied to wait and see what the real acts are. My work is in such a state of forwardness that I have for some days been in ossession of all material facts to which the everal affidavits relate, but as they include t a small part of the matter before me, it ught not to be laid before the public until ossible to place the full, true nd complete history of all the ansactions. From records of the department it is learned that Falls was discharged ly 17, for proposing to control the verdict f some member of the star route jury in vor of the United States, providing clerkships could be obtained or guaranteed for eir relatives or friends. He was originally nployed because he was a lawyer of good landing in this city and it was represented to e government that he had in his possession vidence of corruption of one of the jurors late engaged in the trial of a previous case. When Falls' improper conduct was discovered e endeavored to shield himself by saying at Taylor had told him this was what the overnment wanted. He was, however, summarily discharged for, as alleged, it soon became evident that both Falls and Taylor came to the department as spies for the purpose of ding things to compromise it. Taylor (another of affiants) formerly rendered good service to the government in other cases. He as never regularly employed, however, being paid from day to day as his services were quired. When a statement was received at e department to the effect that Taylor made ffidavit that he was employed by the epartment to corrupt jurors he denied it positively, and it is understood ds and subsequent conversations were reported by concealed stenographers and will aterially damage his last affidavit. After s discharge on August 1st, Taylor, it is rther alleged, strove to create the impression that he was still employed by the department. The last attempt of this kind as on the occasion of a visit to Mr. Cameron, October 7th.

Jeannette Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The examination Lieutenant Danenhower was renewed before the Jeannette board of inquiry this orning. The interesting feature of the proceedings was the introduction in evidence of e log books of the Jeannette and the original muster rolls and charts, with the tin ses in which they were carried by Captain e Long's party through their desperate and peless wanderings in Siberia. The papers l bore marks of the severe usage to which ey had been subjected. Several were almost entirely unintelligible. The original plan the Jeannette before alterations were made her, and plans showing repairs and lterations made at Mare Island, ere put in evidence and were identified by anenhower. Lieutenant Danenhower was sked to give the names, rank and grade of e ship's company, which he did, referring the ship's books to refresh his memory. le stated that the entire company on leaving an Francisco numbered 33; that a Chinaman, h Sing, was discharged at St. Michael's, laska, and provided with passage back to an Francisco, and Alexy and one other Inian employed to accompany the expedition s hunters and dog drivers; that the company umbered 33 all told when the Jeannette entered the Arctic ocean. Witness was then sked to give a running account of the cruise from the date San Francisco, July 8th, '79, until she sank June 13th, '81. He began his narrative, using the ship's log for dates and to refresh his memory. Incidents were very briefly touched upon. At 2:30, when court adjourned for the day, Lieutenant Danenhower reached that part in his narrative where, at 11:10, Aug 30, '79, the Jeannette entered the Arctic ocean and laid her course for the southeast coast of Wrangel Land. He was then called upon to continue his story tomorrow morning.

The proposed order of inquiry into the loss of the Jeannette is as follows: First, condition of the vessel on her departure from San Francisco; second, her management up to the time of her destruction; third, her loss; fourth, provisions made and plans adopted for the several boats' crews upon their leaving the wreck; fifth, efforts made by the various officers to insure the safety of the parties under their charge and for the relief of other parties; sixth, general condition and merits of each and all officers and men of the expedition.

Indian Grievances

WASHINGTON, October 16.—Gen. Crook has issued the following:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT ARIZONA,
WHIPPLE BARRACKS,
PRESCOTT, OCT. 5, 1882.

(General Order No. 43.)

The commanding general, after making a thorough and exhaustive examination among the Indians of the eastern and southern parts of this territory, regrets to say he finds among them a feeling of distrust and want of confidence in the whites, especially the soldiers; and also that much dissatisfaction, dangerous to the peace of the country, exists among them. Officers and soldiers serving in this department are reminded that one of the fundamental principles of military character is justice to all, Indians as well as whites; and a disregard of this principle is liable to bring about hostilities and cause the death of many whom they are sent here to protect. In all their dealing with the Indians, officers must be careful not only to observe the strictest fidelity, but make no promises not in their power to carry out. All grievances that are within their jurisdiction should be redressed, so an accumulation of them may not cause an outbreak. Grievances however petty, if permitted to accumulate, will embarrass the department, and eventually break into a flame. If officers are applied to for the employment of force against the Indians they should thoroughly satisfy themselves of the necessity for the application and legality of compliance therewith.

By order of
MAJOR GENERAL CROOK.
By J. P. MARTIN,
Assistant Adjutant General.

Lost by a Foul.

CHICAGO, October 16.—A Kansas City special says: A prize fight was fought twelve miles from this city, at 6:30 this morning, between Andy Sweeney, of this city, and Jackson Hanley, of Colorado, for $250 a side. The fighters are athletes. Both had been in the ring before and had put themselves in excellent training. Two hundred persons were present. London prize ring rules prevailed. J. B. Carew, of St. Louis, was referee; Ed. Silk, of this city, stakeholder. Hanley was seconded by Pat Clanley, of Colorado, and Jno. Hughes, of Chicago. Sweeney's seconds were Harry Riley and Tom Gibbon, this city. Hanley weighed 170; Sweeney 182. After five minutes sparring Hanley closed and threw Sweeney. The second round resulted likewise. In the third round Hanley's left foot slipped just as he lunged out for a hit in Sweeney's ribs, and owing to this accident the blow landed below the belt, and Sweeney and his seconds claimed the fight on a foul, and the referee decided in their favor. Time of fight, ten minutes and fourteen seconds. Hanley was the favorite in betting, and immediately challenged Sweeney to another encounter.

Postoffice Matters.

WASHINGTON, October 16.—Upwards of 350 presidential commissions of postmasters are expected at the next session of congress. The annual report of the second assistant postmaster general will show decided increase of the star route service for the last fiscal year as compared with that of the year ended June 30, 1880, when the average mileage reached its maximum. The report will show that notwithstanding the increase of mileage the cost of maintaining the service has been less than in 1880 by more than a million dollars. It is estimated the star route service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1884, will cost less than the current fiscal year of 1883 by about $543,880.

Mint Operations

WASHINGTON, October 15.—The report of the director of the mint presents in detail the operations of the mint and assay offices during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1882. The imports of foreign gold coin and bullion for the first half of the year were $30,100,230 greater, but during the last half $28,311,047 less than the exports, the net gain for the year being only $1,789,183. The total amount of gold deposited was $66,756,653, which was $7,400,000 less than that of the preceding year, while the silver purchased for coinage and deposited for bars was about $3,000,000 greater, and amounted to $33,720,401. The total coinage was 11,260,003 pieces, valued at $80,413,447, nearly $11,000,000 more than in any previous year. The silver coinage consisted of $27,772,075 in silver dollars and $113,130 in fractional coin. Gold bars of the value of $37,505,120 were manufactured, and $12,147,074 fine gold for depositors at the New York assay office; fine silver bars of the value of 7,769,898 were also made chiefly at the same institution. Purchases of silver for coinage amounted to 23,627,229 ounces standard silver at a cost of $24,196,943. Of gold coin about $87,000,000 belonged to the treasury, $104,000,000 to national banks and $310,000,000 to the general public, including other banks, of standard dollars $33,000,000 belonged to the treasury and $88,000,000 to banks and the general public; of the total metallic circulation $148,000,000 belonged to the treasury, $112,000,000 to national banks and $441,000,000 was in general circulation.

Slayback's Pistol

ST. LOUIS, October 16.—The coroner's jury was recalled this afternoon when a pawn broker named Morris Michael identified the pistol alleged by McGriffin as taken from Col. Slayback at the time of the shooting by Cockerill as one he sold Slayback some time ago. This is thought will go far toward establishing the fact that Slayback was armed.

New York Democracy.

NEW YORK, October 16.—The joint conference committees of the democratic organizations of this city, after a long consultation, divided the ticket so that naming the sheriff goes to Irving hall, the county clerkship to county democrats and two judges of the supreme court and three coroners to Tammany.

Star Routers Sentenced.

PHILADELPHIA, October 16.—In the United States district court this morning Judge McKernan denied a new trial to Joseph R. Black, Thomas A. McDevitt and Christain Price, convicted of star route conspiracy, and sentenced McDevitt to pay $500 and suffer imprisonment of one year, Price to pay a fine of $100 and undergo sentence for six months from the date of his conviction. The sentence of Black was deferred a few days in consequence of his wife's serious illness.

Fusion Talked of.

KANSAS CITY, October 16.—Correspondence is in progress looking to the withdrawal of both ex-Governor Robinson, greenback, and Colonel Glyck, democratic, nominees for governor and substitution of John Martin, democrat, at the head of the greenback state ticket.

Political Preachers

NEW YORK, October 16. Several preachers preached politics yesterday. Beecher denied he was a prohibitionist, but Talmage glories that he is one. He said, "For 1884 I would nominate for president and vice (and I don't care which heads the ticket), Governor St. John, of Kansas, and Governor Colquitt, of Georgia, and let us prove that the war is indeed over by nominating to the best office the illustrious Georgian."

Prairie Fire

WATERTOWN, D. T., October 16.—The worst prairie fire ever seen in this locality. A two-year old daughter of the lieutenant governor was caught on the prairie and burned to death.

Republican Reconciliation.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 16. The reconciled wings of the republican party met in joint convention last evening and harmoniously proceeded to make nominations as follows: For mayor, M. C. Blake; auditor, Henry Brickwedel; assessor, Alexander Bedlam; county clerk, David Wilder; sheriff, John Sedwick all renominated. Resolutions were introduced asking the democratic convention then in session to join with the republicans in nominating freeholders to prepare a new city charter, a proposition not likely to be accepted, as the democrats had already made arrangements for appointing freeholders and had renominated John H. Grady tax collector.

Port Admiral of New York.

WASHINGTON, October 16.—The secretary of the navy has decided to restore the grade of port admiral at New York, abolished when Vice-Admiral Rowan was relieved from the yard. Commodore John H. Upshur, at present commandant at New York, will be assigned to the position, in addition to present duties.

Steamship Ashore.

LONDON, October 16.—The cargo steamer Preston is ashore near Berkwick. The cargo is still being thrown overboard. Three tugs were in attendance yesterday. Nothing could be done toward floating the vessel. This morning the Preston remains broadside to the sea in bad position. No lighters or boats can get alongside.

Chicago Markets.

CHICAGO, October 16.—At 11:15 on change, prices had experienced quite a boom. Receipts of wheat were larger, other grains smaller; shipments large; weather unpromising, outside reports strong in tenor; wheat advanced 1⅛; corn, ¾ to 1¼; oats, 38½; pork, 22½; lard, 10 to 17½.

Eastern Affairs.

LONDON, October 16. The Times' Constantinople special says: The sultan's acceptance of Said Pasha's conditions for remaining in office are: Abandonment of the Austro-German alliance, the acceptance of accomplished facts in Egypt and the re-establishment of a good understanding between England and France on the eastern question.

CAIRO, October 16.—It is believed in political circles that proof of Arabi's taking part in the June massacres will not be obtainable. It is claimed that Ninet, the Swiss, can prove that many Bedouins were shot on Arabi's order for looting.

Arabi Pasha persists in declaring he will defend himself if denied English counsel at his trial.

Van Wyck's Course.

LINCOLN, Neb., October 16. Senator Van Wyck has taken the stump against Valentine, the regular republican nominee in the third district. He is a strong civil service reformer, because the president refused to give him all the patronage in the state. His course is uncalled for, and condemned heartily by the republicans.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

Regular Semi-Monthly Meeting of the City Council.

Surveys to Be Made For Storage Reservoirs at Lake Morain.

Refusal of City Treasurer to Check Books with City Clerk.

The regular monthly meeting of the city council was held in the council chamber in the opera house block last night. Mayor Robbins occupied the chair and Aldermen Brown, Coombs, Wilson, Crowell, Anderson and Downing responded to roll-call. The minutes of the last regular meeting, also of the special meeting, were read by City Clerk McCreery and approved.

A petition signed by seventeen citizens of Manitou was presented asking for an extension of 2,000 feet of pipe from the main pipe. Captain Rogers, one of the citizens of Manitou, was present and stated that the proposed extension would supply some eighty-six rooms with water and would add greatly to the growth and prosperity of Manitou. A motion to accept the petition and place it on file was carried.

Reports of committees were called for and Alderman Wilson, chairman of a special committee appointed to look into the practicability of establishing storage water reservoirs in the vicinity of Lake Morain said that if he could make a verbal report he would do so. It was ascertained that the rules governing the matters of the council required all committee reports to be made in writing. The rules were therefore suspended for the evening. Alderman Wilson said that he for one did not feel like visiting the mountains at this season of the year unless suitable transportation and accommodations for the committee were provided.

Alderman Crowell said that he did not think it necessary for the committee to visit the mountains at all, saying that they would be of but little aid to the engineer. Alderman Crowell suggested that on account of the lateness of the season any action in relation to surveys, etc., be deferred until next spring.

Alderman Wilson maintained that it was important that the matter should be attended to at once so that the present council could make an appropriation this year for the work. He made a motion that the city engineer be instructed to visit Lake Morain, make preliminary surveys and report at the next meeting of the council as to the probable cost of the proposed reservoirs, and about what would be the amount of water supply from that source, which was carried.

Chairman Wilson, of the finance committee, stated that he had in accordance with the instructions of the last meeting of the council, called on the city treasurer, Mr. J. J. Hooker, and begged to submit the following report:

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Colorado Springs.

GENTLEMEN: In accordance with the instructions of the council at the last regular meeting, I, as chairman of the finance committee, called on Mr. J. J. Hooker, the city treasurer, and requested that he appoint a time to meet the city clerk and myself in the council-room to compare his books with those of the city clerk so that I might have an opportunity of checking them and thus be enabled to make a report on the same to the council. Mr. Hooker said that the abstract which he had made and sent to the council was all that was necessary. I took the liberty of suggesting that some of the aldermen thought that perhaps some of the items might be charged to the wrong accounts, and it was for this reason that they desired to have the books checked. Mr. Hooker excitedly asked who the aldermen were, and I, having nothing to conceal, replied that Mr. Brown made the motion and desired the books examined, whereat Mr. Hooker denounced Mr. Brown as an ass, saying that Mr. Brown knew nothing about the matter whatever and reiterating that Mr. Brown was a perfect ass, and that he (Mr. Hooker) had no regard whatever for Mr. Brown. I informed Mr. Hooker that I did not come there to hear one of my honorable associates denounced, and if he had finished his abuse I would proceed to business. I then asked him if he would comply with the order of the council and appoint a time to meet me in the council room to check his books with the city clerk, and he positively refused to do so. I then asked Mr. Hooker if the interest on the bonds which is payable in New York, had been paid. After considerable talk, he admitted that the interest on what is known as the Sigafus bonds had not been paid, nor could I obtain from him a definite reply to my question, "Have you made arrangements to pay the interest on said bonds?" From what I could learn from Mr. Hooker, he seems to be of the opinion that the holders of the bonds should notify him where the interest should be paid. Heretofore the credit of this city has been maintained by the city treasurer making arrangements with the Chemical bank of New York—the bank with the highest standing of any in the United States—to pay our interest coupons when presented. In New York the various banks and bankers on coupon day send to all the banks a list of coupons payable at their respective banks, thus making a coupon equal to the credit of the bank which pays them, and they are thus as good as a national bank note in Wall street. After leaving Mr. Hooker's store I found Mr. Downing, of the finance committee, and requested him to go to Mr. Hooker's store with me and become a witness to the fact of the language used by Mr. Hooker, and also his positive refusal to meet the committee as directed by the council. I again asked Mr. Hooker in Mr. Downing's presence whether he would meet the committee in the council room. After some words and the question being again asked Mr. Hooker replied no! that he would be d—— if he did.

This report does not exaggerate one particle; on the contrary it is much milder than all that Mr. Hooker said, the superlative adjective having been used at least six times by the treasurer. I would respectfully ask the honorable mayor to relieve me of the duties of chairman of the finance committee and would respectfully suggest to the council that in order to sustain the credit of the city, the matter of the payment of the interest on the bonds be settled, and also whether the council has the right to examine the books of the treasurer, and if so, when, how, and where?

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY A. WILSON,
Chairman Finance Com.

Alderman Wilson said that it was no pleasant duty to act as chairman of the finance committee under the existing circumstances and he would insist that his request to be removed from that position be granted.

Alderman Crowell moved that Alderman Wilson's request be granted, which was unanimously carried.

Alderman Wilson asked whether the council could not compel Mr. Hooker to bring his books to the council room and check with the city clerk as he had been instructed to. He appealed to the city attorney who replied that a mandamus could be issued which would require him to do so.

Alderman Brown explained to the council that he had never to his knowledge given Mr. Hooker any reason to make the remarks he had to Alderman Wilson.

Alderman Downing said that as he understood it Mr. Hooker consented to the books being taken to the city clerk's office but he could not go himself as he was busy moving.

Alderman Crowell remarked that Mr. Hooker ought to be made to bring his books to the council room as requested and as he looked at it Mr. Hooker's refusal was a direct insult to the council in thus setting their instructions at defiance.

The question of settling the interest on the July water bonds was again brought up and Alderman Anderson moved that the council act independent of the treasurer and order the money sent to the Chemical bank in New York to meet the July coupons.

Alderman Brown said that the council could not thus take the authority from the treasurer and Mr. Anderson's motion received no second.

A motion was made by Alderman Downing and seconded by Wilson that the mayor fill the vacancy on the finance committee caused by the withdrawal of Alderman Wilson, which was carried.

The mayor suggested the name of Alderman Crowell, who declined to act and afterward appointed Alderman Himebaugh as chairman of the finance committee.

A motion was then made by Alderman Wilson that the chairman of the finance committee notify Mr. Hooker to bring his books to the council room and check them up with the city clerk.

It was suggested by Alderman Downing that the time and place for the books to be checked up be left to the finance committee, as it might be more convenient for the clerk to take his books to the treasurer's place of business than for the treasurer to come to the council room.

This proposition was opposed by Alderman Wilson on the ground that he did not favor the removal of the city clerk's books from his office as it was a bad precedent to establish.

The original motion made by Alderman Wilson prevailed.

Alderman Anderson, chairman of the water works committee, reported in favor of allowing the petition of W. R. Wheeler asking for a water main extension on Oak street, a distance of 200 feet. Carried.

Alderman Anderson asked for an extension of time in which to report on the petition of E. P. Tenney for the extension of water mains in the northern part of the city.

Next came the presentation of bills, and the following were allowed:

Lennox Bros	$ 4 50
John Murphy	10 50
J. L. Marston	30 17
Dennis Long & Co	76 78
M. A. Leddy & Co	3 30
Giles Crissey	23 50
Weston & Trost	200 00
W. M. Fernsworth	100 00
W. H. Dunn	1 50
Colorado Springs Gas Co	108 10
Labor on public grounds	23 04
S. E. Sessions	500 00

There was considerable discussion as to the allowance of the bill of W. M. Fernsworth & Co. for services in capturing the burglar McBride and his pal. The bill was for $140, one hundred being the reward offered by the mayor, the remainder for services rendered. It was decreed to allow only the reward of $100.

Alderman Wilson offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

I move that the clerk keep a regular memoranda of all bills, petitions and all other documents that may be referred to the different committees and that it shall be the duty of the mayor at the regular meetings to call upon the chairmen of the several committees for reports of all business that may have been referred at previous meetings.

Council then adjourned.

The Ascension.

The Rev. Addison Blanchard, Congregational superintendent of missions for Colorado and moderator of the late conference, preached at the Congregational church last Sunday morning. After the sermon the Lord's supper was administered. We give a brief outline of the sermon:

And he led them out as far as unto Bethany, and he lifted up his hands and blessed them. And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them and carried up into heaven. And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy.—Luke xxiv: 50-52.

We may study the Bible in two ways. We may study individual texts, or we may take the method of perspective,—a larger and more general view. We may consider how the gospel appeared in the days of Abraham, who saw the coming of Christ and was glad; how it appeared to the prophets; the time when, men looking for the Messiah, there was the voice of one crying in the wilderness. We may study the birth, the enmity against Christ, the crucifixion, the resurrection. And then we may study the prophetic part of the New Testament and consider what is to come.

How did the ascension appear to those disciples? How differently to the disciples did the gospel with the ascension appear than it would have appeared without, and how, therefore, should it appear to us? For we are but their successors. It is all past now, Christ's earthly career. He has performed all his miracles. His death is past and his resurrection. He has appeared, not again to the multitude, not again in the streets or in the temple, but to his disciples. He has met five hundred brethren at once in Galilee. His earthly part, that which he came to do, is ended. He leads them out as far as the Mount of Olives, gives his will that the gospel be preached in his name among all men. He blesses them and is received out of their sight.

How did this impress them, what additional thought did it give, what additional power?

First.—His ascension was not death. We are accustomed necessarily to think of death as the door of life. So we may think of Christ as dying at this time. No. He had died and risen. It was not like death. In death there is dissolution, dust to dust, but not here. There was no sadness. Death is always sad. Now unless we are able to look to something beyond, it is as sad as ever. But in this case there was not sorrow. It is said in these very verses that they "returned to Jerusalem with great joy." Now death and hell have no more power over him. Christ was gone, but not dead.

Second.—The ascension was not like the taking away of Enoch and Elijah, spoken of in the Old Testament. It was like in that it was just as real. There was the difference that they had not died. Christ had died and taken away the gloom of the grave. Christ could have been taken up as Enoch and Elijah, but then his work would not have been done. He would have been the only person having lived a pure life on the earth, he would have been an example for us, our prophet and king, God manifest in the flesh. But he would not have fulfilled the prophecies, he would not have been our priest, would not have redeemed us. In a sense we would have been worse off than before. We would have had more light, but no savior; more light, but no way out of our sin. No, he died and then ascended. His atoning work was not completed when he shed his blood on earth, but he has gone to present the perfectness of his work before God. People sometimes talk as if Christ had gone to be glorified. But that isn't why he went. He went because his work of atonement was not done.

To sum up what the ascension did for them.

1. It must have led the disciples to think of Christ in a real way. And is this not our need?

2. It must have given a great reality to the promises. He had given some very definite promises. We are too much in the habit of looking on promises as mere promises. They took hold of them in a real way, expecting them to be realized. The thought of many is that the object of Christianity is to get to heaven. That is all there is of it. But Christ has distributed gifts among us, and each of us should see what is his particular gift.

3. It must have been a help in the matter of prayer.

4. They understood his divinity better. It is evident that the disciples did not understand him. Now that they see him go, they begin to understand that he is divine.

5. It must have given them courage. We should ever think of Christianity as something of which we are a part. Some think that Christianity has had its youth, its manhood, and must have its old age. This would be true if it were a system. But it is not a system, it is an organism. Christianity is not merely a system of ethics. Christians need to believe in a wise Lord.

6. It gave them a distinct idea in regard to the future. What was it? Christ merely. There is a way of thinking about the future that is not a power. There is a mystery about it, but not a spiritual power. The Christian's future is Christ. The future is warm, full, attractive; Christ is there. We offer Christ to you because it comes near you. He offers himself to you. Take him now.

Philadelphia Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., October 16. The freight sheds on pier 8, south wharves, the pier itself, the freight stored there, and the large tug boats Argus and Major, together with the narrow gauge railway freight depot and contents, were burned this morning. Three of the Major's crew were terribly burned, and a number of others were seriously injured by falling spars. The rigging of several vessels was burned away, but there was no serious damage to them. Loss, $100,000.

Victimizer of Widows.

PEKIN, Ills., October 16. John Black, a well-known merchant, also president of the Crown Distillery company, of this city, in which S. J. Mills, of Boston, is largely interested, left here September 30 for Boston and is said to have sailed for Europe October 4. Investigation produces conviction that he is a defaulter to his partners and has victimized relatives and widows and orphans. The defalcation aggregates over $15,000.

The Denver Inter-Ocean's last portrait is of Melvin Edwards, republican candidate for secretary of state.

It is rumored that Gladstone will withdraw from public life at the close of the autumn session of parliament.

The Solid Muldoon has been changed from a weekly to a daily. It announces that its politics will be democratic and its religion mixed, the same we suppose as heretofore.

While the Commercial believes that New York, Pennsylvania and Indiana will probably follow the political example of Ohio, it still thinks the republicans may manage to get away with old Ben Butler, in Massachusetts.

The New York Herald has the following to say of "Robeson's chances?" "There is a "report that the democrats and greenbackers "in Mr. Robeson's district intend to combine "on the democratic candidate for congress "and compel Speaker Keifer's manager to "stay at home. As the united vote of the two "factions is greater than that last cast for Mr. "Robeson there may be some ground for the "story. It might be better, however, for the "opposition to do no such thing. If the re-"publicans of Mr. Robeson's district like "their present member so much, in spite of "his record, as to want him to represent them "again in congress the democrats would gain "most distinctly by letting the republicans "improve this opportunity for political "suicide. The re-election of Robeson would "give the democrats the best chance they could "ask for declaiming in 1884 against republi-"can corruption."

The following will certainly add much to Tennessee's reputation for honesty and chivalry:

"Among the paper obligations of Tennessee are a small amount of bonds known as Mrs. Polk's bonds some $28,000 in all, if we remember. Under the legislative adjustment for a settlement with the state's creditors at sixty cents on the dollar, these bonds will have to be scaled as others are. Mrs. Polk will get sixty cents on the dollar and no more.

But the party which is not satisfied with the legislative settlement insists that the Polk bonds shall be paid in full, while the other creditors shall get but fifty cents on the dollar. It is not pretended that Mrs. Polk has a better claim than other creditors; but then her claim is smaller. If it were for $280,000 instead of $28,000, it is doubtful whether the patriotism of the Tennessee readjusters would go so far as to advocate their payment in full. Fortunately for the widow of the dead president, her claim is a small one, and the readjuster can afford to be munificently liberal in respect to it.

And the parade the Tennessee readjuster makes of his magnanimity in proposing to pay the widow her just due is a sublime spectacle. How refreshingly honest he appears by comparison with the state credit man, who insists upon a settlement at sixty cents on the dollar, and no preference for one creditor over another. "Why," shouts the readjuster, "not to pay the widow's bonds in full would be flat repudiation!" And so it would, but what scales are upon his eyes that he does not see that it will be as flat repudiation not to pay other claims equally just in full also?

The Tennessean who advocates a forced settlement with the long-suffering creditors of the state, on the basis of sixty or fifty cents on the dollar, is a repudiationist, and nothing else. If any of the bonds are illegal, and were unauthorized, they should not be paid at all, but no such bonds are now among those included in the present indebtedness of the state. There is not one of them that common honesty does not require paid, dollar for dollar.

RESULTS SO FAR.

At last there seems to be something definite from Ohio in regard to the members of congress just elected. The republicans have elected seven and the democrats fourteen. Of the members of the present congress five republicans and three democrats are re-elected, and five republicans and one democrat are beaten. Three of the democrats, though not members of the present congress, have been in congress before. Of new men there are two republicans and eight democrats.

A summing up of what has been done so far in electing members of the next congress may be be of interest. The present congress consists of 293 members. Since the census of 1880 a new apportionment has been made and the next congress, the forty-eighth, will have 325 members. The republicans have a very small majority in the present congress. Whether they will have a small majority in the next is just now a question of much interest.

Oregon began the elections for the next house June 5th by re-electing Congressman George, a republican. September 5th Vermont elected two republicans, the full delegation in the next congress. In Maine four republicans were elected September 11th, on a general ticket, the state losing one seat by the new apportionment and the republicans gaining two seats from the greenbackers. West Virginia and Ohio, each of which has an additional member in the house, followed last Tuesday. In West Virginia the democrats hold their present number, 3, and the republicans gain one. In Ohio the republicans lose heavily. The following table gives a comparison of the forty-seventh and the forty-eighth congress so far as the states that have already elected are concerned. R stands for republican and O for opposition, under which term we indicate all not republicans. In this congress then are two greenbackers from Maine, but all the opposition members elected to the next are democrats:

	XLVII. R.	XLVII. O.	XLVIII. R.	XLVIII. O.
Oregon	1	0	1	0
Vermont	3	0	2	0
Maine	3	2	4	0
West Virginia	0	3	1	3
Ohio	15	5	7	14
Total	22	10	15	17

It so happens that the gains and losses in apportionment exactly offset each other, so that these five states have thirty-two members in each congress. It will be seen that so far as these states are concerned a republican majority of twelve is changed to a democratic majority of two: that is, the democrats have made a net gain equal to two from the greenbackers and seven from the republicans. In the present state of parties this gain in itself is very important, but as we have already pointed out, the effect on other states of the Ohio election is likely to be quite marked. The next elections will take place three weeks from to-day.

PERSONAL.

Senator James G. Fair of Nevada, one of the big bonanza firm, residing in California, is said to be in declining health.

London gossips say that Mrs. Langtry, finding how much is expected of her beauty in America, has become better looking.

Mr. Frank Carpenter will this winter paint portraits of President Arthur, General Grant and ex-Senator Conkling for the rooms of the American legation at Pekin.

Dr. Yavorsky, who was private physician to the late ameer of Afghanistan, is about to publish an illustrated work containing an account of his travels in Central Asia.

On Friday of next week a bust of Balfe will be unveiled in Westminster Abbey with imposing ceremonies, including the performance of some of the great composer's own works.

Baron Nordenskjold is getting ready for another Arctic expedition which is to set out from Stockholm next summer under the patronage of Wilhelm Schonlenck, a Berlin merchant.

William W. Story, the sculptor, is now in Boston with his wife, who revisits her old home there for the first time in seventeen years, having constantly resided in Rome during that period.

Judge Reed, for a long time connected with the Pacific Mail company's office in San Francisco as general correspondence clerk, has resigned that position. The company in consideration of his many years' service, has given the judge a retiring allowance of $150 a month.

Civil service reformers are rather cleverly described by the Boston Globe as people who "want a man's application for office decided by a lot of grammar-school questions instead of a searching inquiry into his record and some practical demonstration of his fitness for the work of his position."

William Hayshaw Overend, a London artist, and one of the staff of the Illustrated News of that city, is now in this country for the purpose of securing studies for a painting nine feet in length and five feet in height, to represent the naval battle between the vessels Hartford and Tennessee in Mobile, when Admiral Farragut was in charge of the union fleet. After the work is completed an engraving will be made by the Fine Art society of London.

Pope Leo XIII. finds amusement in a bird-trap. In the Vatican gardens have been placed two concentric circles of trees. Among the branches of the inner circle are hung cages containing song birds, which serve as decoys. Between the two circles are large network squares, and in these the birds, allured by the caged songsters, are stricken with implements by the hunters.

A Self-Sacrificing Young Person.

China—B. K. Douglas.

The following edict is from the Peking Gazette of May 25, 1877: "Le Hung-chang, the viceroy of Chih-li there reports the case of a Miss Wang, who from her earliest youth 'exhibited a decorous propriety of conduct and a love of study.' She was a diligent reader of Lew Heang's 'Lives of Virtuous Women' and the poems of Muh Lan. At the age of 13 it was proposed to betroth her. At the first hint of this reaching her ears she retired to her room and drew, with a pointed instrument, blood from her arm, with which she wrote a sentence declaring her intention to remain single in order to devote herself to the care of her parents. At the age of 18 she refused in like manner, and when, in 1852, the remains of her father and second brother, who had perished at the taking of Woo-ch'ang by the rebels were brought back to Kao-yeo, she exclaimed, amid her tears, that since she could not follow her father to the tomb, her mother being still alive, her blood should at least serve to varnish his coffin; so saying she gashed her arm with a knife, allowing a stream of blood to mingle with the lacquer of the coffin. She had reached the age of 26 when her father's obsequies were completed; and her mother and elder brother were anxious that she should marry; but she steadfastly refused to do so, and devoted herself to attending upon her mother, with whom she shortly afterward removed to Choh-chow, on her brother receiving an appointment at Peking, as a reward for his services. She allowed no other hands but her own to wait upon her mother, and when, in 1862, her mother was attacked with dangerous illness, she cut a piece of flesh from her left thigh to be administered as a remedy. In less than a year a fresh attack of illness supervened, and she cut a piece of flesh from her right thigh on this occasion, recovery ensuing as before. On subsequent occasions, when her parent was attacked with slight ailments, she applied burning incense-stick to her arm, and used the calcined flesh to mingle with the remedies prescribed, with invariably successful results. After her mother's death, in 1872, she refused all sustenance during a period of three days, and was with difficulty persuaded to take food. Her brother shortly afterward died, whereupon she escorted his remains to the ancestral home of Kao-yeo, and afterward returning thence, performed the same journey once more in attendance on her mother's coffin. The devotion and energy she has displayed exceed what might be expected from one of the wide repute which has been gained by her virtues at Choh-chow, that a monument may be erected to her honor under imperial sanction. Granted by rescript."

The Wolf Boy.

Chambers' Journal.

One morning many years ago, Mr. H., who happened at the time to be magistrate and collector of the Etawah district, was out riding accompanied by a couple of sowars, or mounted orderlies. They were passing over a portion of the road that lay in the vicinity of the ravines of the river Jumna, when two half-grown wolf cubs crossed their path, and, following them more slowly, came a very remarkable looking creature, which shambled along on all fours—in an extraordinarily uncouth fashion. This turned out to be a wolf-child. Letting the other two go unmolested, the three men proceeded to hunt down the human cub, and succeeded in bringing it to bay. As they wished to take the creature alive, and were altogether unwilling to hurt it in any way, they found the greatest difficulty in attempting to secure it, for it fought, bit and clawed with extreme fierceness and pertinacity; indeed, having driven it into a corner, Mr. H. and one of the sowars had to mount guard, while the other native proceeded to the nearest village and got a stout blanket for the purpose of throwing it over its head, and it was by this means that the capture was at length effected. All the way home the wolf-child behaved like a mad thing, screaming and howling, now piteously, now in a paroxysm of impotent rage. It was, however, taken to Mr. H.'s house; but it would not be comforted, and for a long time refused all kinds of food, including raw meat. The creature was a boy of about nine years of age, and it may here be stated that no female wolf-child has ever been heard of or seen. It is not easy to assign a sufficient reason for the fact that females have never been so discovered, unless we suppose that, being less vigorously constituted, they have been unable to withstand the terrible hardships of such an existence, and have very soon sickened and died. In appearance, this boy was exceedingly repulsive; his features were blunt and coarse, and their expression brutalized and insensible. As to his habits, they were exactly those of a wild animal. Mr. H. caused minute inquiries to be made throughout the neighboring villages as to whether the inhabitants had lost any children through their being carried off by wolves, and, if so, whether they could recognize the human waif that had been recovered, by means of birth-marks, moles, or other indelible tokens. In the course of a few days the father and mother of the lad were discovered. They identified him by certain well-defined marks about the breast and shoulders, and stated he had been carried away when about two years of age. His parents, however found him very difficult to manage, for he was most fractious and troublesome in fact, just a caged wild beast. Often during the night, for hours together, he would give vent to most unearthly yells and moans, destroying the rest and irritating the tempers of his neighbors, and generally making night hideous. On one occasion, his people chained him by the waist to a tree that stood near the hut, which was situated on the outskirts of the village. Then a rather curious incident occurred. It was a bright moonlight night, and two wolf cubs undoubtedly those in whose companionship he had been captured—attracted apparently by his cries, while on the prowl, came to him, and were distinctly seen to gambol about and play with him with as much familiarity and affection as if they considered him quite one of themselves. They only left him on the approach of morning, when movement and stir again arose in the village. The wolf-boy, however, did not survive long. Accustomed to the wilds for at least half-a-dozen years, captivity and the change in the mode of life appeared not to agree with him, for he gradually pined away and died. He never spoke a word; nor did a single ray of human intelligence ever shed its refining light over his poor debased features.

By Universal Accord,

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other Pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

Various Causes—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

For sale by all druggists.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recommended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

Disasters at Sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 16.—The British hip Bremen, Dougall master, from Liverpool, un ashore on Farallon island this morning at o'clock during a dense fog. The crew were ll saved and brought here by the schooner Daisy Rowe. The vessel will probably be a otal loss. At the time the ship struck a oderate wind was blowing. The lookout aw land only a few ship lengths ahead and ad no time to change the ship's course. The hip struck and turned broad side on to the ocks, pounding heavily. The crew were deoralized by the sudden shock and apparent anger from falling spars, and notwithstandg the efforts of Captain Dougall and Chief ate Baden to maintain order, rushed o the boats. One capsized but the occupants ere picked up by the others. The captain nd mate remained on board. The boats lay ff and on for about two hours, when finding fforts to save the ship or anything on board seless, the captain signalled the boats and e the mate was taken off. Just as they ere leaving the ship a fog whistle began lowing, though for hours a dense fog had revailed. The boats had pulled about nine iles when they were picked up by the Daisy owe. Owing to the lateness of the hour gs did not go to the wreck to-day. It is beeved, however, nothing will be saved from e ship.

Miln's Debut.

CHICAGO, October 16.—Ex-Rev. George C. iln, formerly a well known pastor in ooklyn, more recently successor of Robert llyer as pastor of Unity church, Chicago, ade his debut as Hamlet at the Grand pera house this evening before a splendid dience physically measured by the capacity the house. His somewhat sudden transit om the pulpit to the stage engendered many rtisan antagonisms and friendships, and edictions of success and failure were about ually divided. When Miln first apared, absolutely self-poised and with e ease of "one to the anner born," the entire audience plauded demonstratively and after each ene he was recalled. The general verdict his Hamlet is that it is a distinct and indiual impersonation. Toward the last, aprently encouraged by the cordial reception, overtaxed his voice and showed a slight ndency to rant. Aside from this his readin was scholarly, deliberate, thoughtful, inse. R. M. Hooley says, "It's a hit." A. R. seaman, dramatic writer of New York, ys, "His reading is better than Edwin oth's." The debutant's knowledge of stage siness is surprising. The supporting comny was weak.

He claims that the stock at the time of purchase was worth $116,308 less than he paid for it and he sues for the amount.

Bold Dash for Liberty.

WASHINGTON, October 16.—A telegram from Atlanta, Ga., states that a verdict of guilty was rendered against the men who burned Deputy Collector Stewart's property and attempted to murder him. The prisoners made a bold attempt to escape from the court house upon hearing the verdict. One of them, James Findley, rushed through the crowd with a drawn revolver and escaped.

Welfare of Ireland.

ST. LOUIS, October 16.—At a meeting of the central council of the land league of this city, held to-night, the following message was sent to the Irish national conference which convenes at Dublin to-morrow: "The determined Irishmen of St. Louis pledge support to any movement which promotes the welfare of Ireland."

Daniel Webster Slandered and Dead.

Perley in Boston Journal.

Webster was a slandered man altogether. Apollo's steeds can draw no scavenger's cart, and his fair fame suffered for the sins of friends, speculating on his open, liberal nature; to which wealth was dross, easily gained and recklessly squandered. Like Charles James Fox, the great English statesman, he possessed a sovereign scorn for money and a disregard for pecuniary obligations. He felt bitterly toward the close of his life the obligations which he had incurred by relinquishing his profession to plead the cause in congress of the New England manufacturers, some of whom discourteously reminded him at different times that he had received their money and should be their servant. Dr. Ruggles said that once on parting Mr. Webster cordially remarked: "Come down to Washington, come often, I want none of your short-legged, sixty-day fellows about me with their three days' grace—I want men—long-legged men—who go striding down the century like those pre-Adamite birds in the old Connecticut Valley." In his mind's eye Mr. Webster doubtless saw them waddling down State street, and one or more of them perchance wondering whether a piece of sixty-days' paper they had put their names upon would be paid when it fell due by the honorable maker thereof or by those who had been honored with the privilege of indorsing it. It was one of these cotton-spinning patrons who said to Mr. Webster when it was rumored that he was going abroad: "I hear, Mr. Webster, that you are going to England. What for, Mr. Webster—what for?" "I am going," said the solemn, dark-browed son of thunder, "I am going over to see the Duke of Devonshire." "What for, Mr. Webster; why do you want to see him?" "Because," said Mr. Webster, "because he never made a bargain in his life!"

* * * * * *

Seeing a crowd gathered around the silver-leaf poplar tree in front of the house, we joined the throng, and there saw the mortal remains of the deceased statesman in an iron casket, the entire lid of which had been removed. The body was clothed in a suit which I had often seen Mr. Webster wear at Washington—a blue broadcloth dress coat, with gilt buttons, a white waistcoat, white trousers, low shoes and gaiters, a white cravat and a turned-over shirt collar. Death had not impaired the impressive beauty of his majestic brow, but his slightly opened lips, partially disclosing his white teeth, clothed the lower portion of his countenance with a sarcastic smile.

Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and operation, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it.
